Four Alaska Museums offering free summer admission to Military Personnel

This summer, over 900 museums across the U.S. are demonstrating support for America's service personnel by offering free admission for military families through Sept. 6, 2010.

This unique way to support America's service personnel is a partnership among the Blue Star Families program and the National Endowment for the Arts.

The four museums in Alaska are: Alaska State Museum, Juneau; Alaska Aviation Museum, Anchorage; and the Baranov Museum and Alutiiq Museum, both in Kodiak.

For more information on this program, go to the Blue Star Museums link at www.eed.state.ak.us/aksca

The mission of the Alaska State Council on the Arts (ASCA) is to foster the development of the arts for all Alaskans through education, partnership, grants and services. ASCA is a division of the Alaska Department of Education and Early Development, and is governed by eleven council members appointed by the Governor. It is supported with general funds appropriated by the Alaska State Legislature and the National Endowment for the Arts, with additional support for arts education programs from the Rasmuson Foundation.
